Decked out in red and black, the student body swarms the Caf, the Union and the lawn around any event. Whether the students are belting out the fight song at the Order of the Pack or are cheering on Miss ASU, the students are getting involved. The Student Government Association, the Student Activities Board and many Registered Student Organizations hold hands on events to get the students pumped up and drawn into college life. The fun begins with traditions like Camp A-State and Order of the Pack. Students let their spirit fly and are always ready for the next big event on campus to get involved. Multicultural activities, non-traditional student events and international student programs allow anyone and everyone to be part of the Red Wolves tradition. We are involved.

For some new students, Orientation was their first real taste of ASU, for others it's the next step after many campus visits and camps. Either way, Orientation was a day full of fun, new friends and information. Students registered for their first semester of classes and picked from a wide range of break out sessions to attend. By the end of the day students may have felt like they were experiencing information overload, but it is well worth the new adventures awaiting them at astAte.

Camp ASTATE

Camp ASTATE was a two night, three day college experience that seventy-five eager freshmen attended August 3-5th. Participants had the chance to come to ASU to become familiarized with the campus and meet with a various student leaders, staff, and other incoming freeshmen. The students received a little taste of college freedom in a structured setting without having the stress of homework associated with classes. Orientation Leader's were responsible for planning the entire camp which included many challenging team building exercises that enhanced leadership and communication skills. Aside from the the many team-building activities the participants had plenty of time for fun during the Luau pool party, scavenger hut, and game night. The 2009 Camp ASTATE participants were a very outgoing group of individuals that made fast friends with each other, and many individuals remained friends throughout their freshmen year.

More than 11,000 students have the privilege of calling Arkansas State University their collegiate institution. However, any ASU student can tell you that ASU is much more than a college–it is a home. The Student Activities Board makes it their duty to ensure that students feel welcomed to Arkansas State and enthused about their future here by planning Welcome Week. Welcome Week was a seven day celebration that took place during the first week of classes. This year, comedian Roy Woods Jr., Karaoke Extravaganza, Freshmen Connections campus tours, committee sign-ups, and an array of over-the-top festivities on Heritage Plaza lawn got students pumped about the year ahead of them. After these action-packed seven days, ASU students couldn't help but feel welcomed among Howl and know that home is where the wolf tracks are.

Scattering the grass during Welcome Week, the Community and Organization Fair took place. Students lined up for free food, social activities, and to find out information for jobs and organizations. Personalized club t-shirts made up the fair's attire. Student Activities Board members wore their 'True Life' t-shirts while the Greeks sported their letters proudly. Students got to know about each club and job and were able to sign up.

Let 'em hear ya....HOWL!

Order of the Pack is an event hosted every year by Student Activities Board, and this year over 2,000 students were in attendance. The event included a unique welcome from SGA President Ryan Beaird, which included a remix of Beyonce's hit "Single Ladies." Other speakers included student leaders: SAB Spirit Club Director Adrian Everett, SAB President Sharnea Diggs, NPC Greek President Jamie Beck, SAB Directors Isaiah Tatum and Shannon O'Nale. These students provided history about ASU. There were many administrators and coaches that encouraged the student body to support all ASU Athletics, and all athletic teams were featured at this event. Corey Leonard gave a motivational speech and Bryan Hall and his teammates led the crowd in the fight song. At the end of the event all students were given a Centennial stein as a token to remember Order of Pack during ASU's 100th year of existence.

Miss Arkansas State University is an annual philanthropic beauty pageant sponsored by the Delta Theta Chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity. Proceeds from the pageant benefit research performed by the American Cancer Society. Miss ASU 2009, was held on February 25, 2009, at the Fowler Center. Miss ASU contestants are nominated by various organizations across ASU's campus, including sororities, fraternities, A-team, Phi Mu Alpha, Honor's College Association, and the National Society of Collegiate Scholars. Anna Callaway, a junior nominated by Chi Omega, won the 2009 title, as well as a $7500 scholarship, over $1000 wardrobe allowance, and a chance to advance to the Miss Arkansas Pageant in July 2009. The second runner up was junior Kailey Pinson, third runner up was junior Somer Allen, and forth runner up was junior Kayla Hendrix. Somer Allen was also presented the People's Choice Award, and Anna Callaway was also voted Miss Congeniality.

Homecoming Events

we are fired up

Homecoming Week at Arkansas State University is one of the most highly anticipated events of the school year. This year's theme "Fired Up! One Hundred Years in the Making," was incorporated throughout the week with events such as, "In the Heat Inferno Challenge," "In the Heat of the Night" Variety Show, and "Step the Stage on Fire," ASU's annual step show competition. The ladies of Chi Omega won this year's President's Cup, the award given to the organization with the most points earned by the end of the week. Chi Omega won 1st place in both the the banner competition and step show, 2nd place in the variety show, 2nd place in the float competition, and 3rd place in the chili-cookoff.

Homecoming Court

we are Red Wolf royalty

Being voted for Arkansas State's Homecoming Court is a huge honor. Various organizations on ASU's campus nominate individuals each year to run against each other for a place on the Court, then those nominees are voted on by ASU's student body. This year's Homecoming Court consisted of ten deserving students, including Mark Parsley, Sharnea Diggs, Adrian Everett, Eleny Davis, Morgan Bookout, Jamie Beck, Adam Jackson, Tyler Allen, Ryan Beaird, and Allie Rodery. ASU then voted juniors Sharnea Diggs and Adrian Everett as Arkansas State's 2009 Homecoming Queen and King.

On April 1st, 1909, Arkansas State University was born. Opened initially as an Agricultural School, it quickly grew and became an Agricultural and Mechanical College in 1925, Arkansas State College in 1933, and finally Arkansas State University in 1967. Founders' day was dedicated to celebrating this great school's one hundred years of existence with many festivities including a program at the Arch on campus and a parade down Main Street in Jonesboro. Congratulations ASU on an astounding 100 years!

Centennial Celebration Week

one hundred...and counting

Arkansas State University celebrated 100 years during 2009. To commemorate this exciting achievement, the Student Centennial Celebration Committee along with the Centennial Office designated a week of celebration and remembrance for ASTATE students. The week long celebration included Centennial cupcake distribution, a Name That Tune-Through the Decades challenge, Centennial Scavenger Hunt, Red Wolves Carnival on the Lawn, and a photo display of the past 100 years. Although the week was plagued with rain, students continued to enjoy the ASTATE celebration and learned more about the great history of our University.

Living on campus provides unforgettable memories! How has your residential experience effected you? On campus living offers students outstanding benefits such as: long-lasting friendships, a convenient walk to class or the library, handy dining options, easy access to all the exciting campus programs, and great accommodations. ASU student Tametrius Newson a Sophomore Radiology Major, stated "Working as a Desk Assistant in Kays Hall, I am exposed to many different cultures, and personalities."

Multicultural life at ASU is every expanding! The Multicultural Office hosts a wide variety of events such as Women's History Celebration, Black History Month, International Student Week, Hispanic Heritage Week, Asian Awareness Week, and Martin Luther King, Jr. Remembrance. These diverse events allow students at ASTATE to become more familiar and connected with various cultures, rituals, and a better understanding of history. "Everyone is Welcome" at Arkansas State University!

A variety of events are hosted throughout the year to encourage non-traditional students, and often family members, to become more involved with the campus community. The year begins with A-State Welcome. This program serves as the official welcome to ASTATE and provides valuable information regarding campus services and degree programs. Throughout the semester, additional events are hosted such as Kiddie Care, Fall Festival, Day Care Fair, academic support programs and community outreach. The programs and services offered by the Non-Traditional Student Service office are designed to support and meet the needs of our ever-expanding non-traditional student population.

Students at Arkansas State University have the rare opportunity to learn about cultures from all over the world by interacting with the large population of International students on campus. The International students at ASU are from all over the world and are not only experiencing the American culture, but educating Americans on ways of life in their home country.

St. Jude's Up Til Dawn

we are saving children

How many college students who pull an all-nighter can truly say they made a difference in someone else's life that night? Those who participated in Up 'Til Dawn in February can.

Up 'Til Dawn is a program set up by St. Jude's Research Hospital in Memphis, where colleges across the country raise awareness and support for the hospital. The overall goal of this program is to end cancer in children once and for all.

After weeks of planning, students at ASU spent one special night writing letters, stuffing envelopes, sticking stamps, and eating their fair share of pizza. When the night came to a close, they had raised just under $25,000 to aid in finding a cure to cancer, in hopes that the children at St. Jude's can grow up healthy and attend college someday too.

Registered Student Organization Events

There is always an event, program, or meeting sponsored by a student organization to entertain and inform the students at Arkansas State University. Fashion show, organization meeting, musical performance, variety show, and food festival are just a few examples of the various events hosted by student organization on this campus. Student organizations allow students the opportunity to get involved at ASTATE.

In a world of hit primetime TV shows, eye-popping tabloid headlines, and pop stars that never cease to amaze, world media is all around us and it's crazier than ever. This year, many ground-breaking events were made hot topics in the world of pop culture. The infamous Britney Spears made a comeback in her career, Jon and Kate Gosseliln's divorce turned ugly, gladiator flip flops seemingly landed on the feet of every young woman overnight, Cartier celebrated their 100th anniversary of selling jewelry to American consumers, the movie Woodstock helped bring retro clothes back onto clothing racks, The Office's Jim and Pam finally said "I do", and in the world of sports, Roger Federer broke Pete Sampras' record of the most grand slams in tennis. Obviously, this year was packed with excitement and drama and –admit it–we loved every minute of it!

On Tuesday January 27, 2009, ASU faced inclement weather that left ASU students and faculty confused. From the covered paths of debris and power outages ASU made the decision to close the campus on Wednesday and Thursday. All students that were living in the residence halls, except Kays, faced power outages, but they regained power on Wednesday. Not only did ASU students and faculty suffer but the community did as well. ASU acted fast to help, and turned the ASU Armory and ASU Convocation into a community shelter for hundreds without electricity throughout the weekend. While this ice storm confused and set so many people back, the positive outcome was that no one on ASU's campus was hurt in a result of the ice storm.

During our time at college, we all find our niches, those few places that we belong. For some they find a place off campus, a church or community group. For others, they find a registered student organization that fits the bill.

ASU has over 150 registered student organizations, each one as unique as the students who are members. Some organizations are centered around a common activity, such as Chess Club and the Piano Society. There are also groups who prepare its members for life after college, such as ROTC and the Public Relations Student Society of America. Still others consider themselves more of a community outreach organization, such as Habitat for Humanity and Keep A Child Alive.

We are event planners, policy makers, editors, travelers, trainers, believers, ambassadors, educators, stat-takers, honor students, resume builders, models, managers, community helpers, and future professionals.

Student Activities Board is the premiere organization that plans educational, cultural, and absolutely fun activities for the students of Arkansas State. The staff of this board were excited students that want to help every other student have the best college experience possible. SAB has specific committees aimed to find out and act out the fun activities that ASU students want. The type of events this group plans ranges from comedians, blood drives, fairs, leadership programs, issues and awareness speakers, homecoming, pep rallies, as well as the annual order of the pack. SGA

Student Government Association

The Student Government Association is an active functioning student ran government here to serve the students of ASU. SGA is here to help the students and let each of their voices be heard. Every academic college has student representation on the Senate as well as undergraduate and graduate students. Additional Senate seats are designated for the Honors College, Military Science, and non-traditional students. SGA meetings are focused on the well being of the students. Topics concerning the enrichment of the student's stay at ASU are all discussed in order to make ASU the best it can be for each and every person. Through SGA, students get a real dose of what politics are like on a larger scale.

2009 Orientation Leaders

While many students spend their summers relaxing, Orientation Leaders spend their summer working with incoming students, parents, and guests at Arkansas State University. The days began well before seven in the morning and ended well after the last freshmen student walked out the doors of the Student Union. Orientation Leaders not only assisted with every aspect of the eleven Orientation sessions held over the summer, but also planned and facilitated a very successful Camp ASTATE experience for seventy-five incoming students. Jessica Hill, a second year Orientation Leader stated, "The 2009 Orientation Leader experience was a blast! Orientation Leader's had such an inspiration to be the best we could be. Whether it was giving tours in the hot summer heat or talking to students and parents about how Arkansas State University was the best place to attend school. The entire OL staff rediscovered ASU on its centennial year and really got out there to let freshmen know what ASU was all about. We enjoyed our jobs, and along with that, became great friends! The staff this year was full of laughter and good times. I never knew I could make some of my best friends in one summer!"

The Global Student Leader program offers ASTATE students the opportunity to travel abroad with the purpose of experiencing new cultures, sightseeing, and interacting with natives or local college students. Each year the student leaders selected for this program spend time researching the history, education system, economic climate, and other important facts about the destination in preparation for the international experience. Switzerland, France, and Italy were the countries selected for the 2009 GSL groups. Steven Lamm, a senior International Business major from Bismarck, Arkansas stated, "Global Student Leader was the opportunity of a lifetime. It offered me an experience, which otherwise, I would never have been able to do, and was by far one of the most valuable, enriching, and expanding events of my college career."

Religious Organizations

Retreats and worship, mission trips and potluck dinners, it's easy to say that the religious organizations on campus make up a family of their own. There are over ten religious organizations on the campus of Arkansas State University, and each one has something different to offer. The BCM is known for its outstanding freshmen program, the Wesley's yearly biking mission trip catches attention, and Revolution Ministries hosts numerous outdoor worship services and events throughout the year. Each group has its unique culture and identity. Whether you're looking for a place to belong or just a friendly face to talk to, these organizations provide a home away from home.

registered student organizations

Connecting with ASTATE! With over 150 student organizations on campus, connecting with ASTATE is easy. The many registered student organizations allow students to explore hobbies, interests and academic disciplines in unison with other students, faculty and staff. Experiencing life outside of the classroom only enhances the college experience and with the many choices at ASTATE, finding your niche is effortless! If the student does not find the exact connection desired, creating a new registered student organization is quick and simple.

You've seen it all around campus: tee shirts, key chains, license plates and more, all covered with Greek letters. From an outside perspective, it may be just letters on a tee shirt or just another keychain dangling from a stAte lanyard, but to the young men and women who participate in Greek life, words can't describe what these letters mean. From the nail-biting week of recruitment to the very last drop-in of the semester, the memories of Greek life will stay with these men and women forever. They cry together. Then they laugh together. They cry together. Then when it's all said and done and they turn their tassels together, they may go their separate ways, but they'll always share that bond of brotherhood or sisterhood. ASU is home to seventeen Greek organizations, all of which have something different and amazing to offer. The National Panhellenic Council governs four organizations, The National Pan-hellenic council governs six, and the Interfraternity Council governs seven. No matter which council or organization students call their home, there is no wrong way to go Greek at Arkansas State University.

Blood is thicker than water–however, piles of lettered tee shirts and stacks of forms filled with history and standards are pretty thick too. The outstanding men and women of ASU's Greek organizations may not be biological brothers and sisters, but they come pretty close. The bonds shared by these individuals cannot be translated by word of mouth and there is no adverb strong enough to describe the closeness they share; It must be experienced first hand, and potential new members had the great privilege of witnessing this connection during recruitment. After four days of visiting suites and attending "smokers", 127 women and 163 men were extended bids and are now living the legacy.

we are living the legacy

Becoming a member of a Greek organization can be overwhelming–new member meetings, standards, learning about your letters–luckily, Greek 101 helps to clear the confusion. The focus of Greek 101 is to educate new members about other fraternal organizations as well as their own, learn to always set a positive example, and to unite as a Greek community. Throughout the evening, Greeks participated in activities and listened to lectures designed to prepare them for the four years ahead of them as not only brothers and sisters of their individual organizations, but as men and women who are leaders and role models in their communities. Greeks left the evening with a knowledge of their organization and pride in their fellow Greeks.

Arkansas State University is home to seventeen Greek organizations, all of which benefit various local and national philanthropies. Each organization sponsors different events throughout the year to raise money for their individual philanthropies. Events, such as Pike Lil Olympics, Phi Beta Sigma Daffodil Days, Chi Omega 5K, and numerous other events, are held to profit organizations such as the Make A Wish foundation, the North American Food Drive, and St. Judes Children's Hospital, as well as many other charities. we are wednesday night wonders

If you were to drive by University Hall on a Wednesday night, you might see groups of fraternity boys dressed as rockstars singing to the windows of the sorority suites, or sorority sisters decked head to toe in neon walking to their cars. They aren't trying to set a new fad. Throughout the semester, sororities are paired up with a fraternities for dropins where themes range from Mardi Gras Madness, CMT vs. MTV, and Boxing Kicks and Ringside Chicks. Most drop-ins take place at the fraternity houses, but some organizations journey off campus to such places as Shakers, Sage Meadows, and the Elks Lodge. Some sororities and fraternities have dances throughout the semester with certain themes as well including: Wildfire, Crush Dance, Bacchus, and Sweetheart Dance.

Parties and formals are a big aspect of Greek life as they are a great way to connect with other Greeks and have a ton of fun while doing so. Fraternities host social events throughout the academic year, and both sororities and fratnerities typically host one annual formal per year. During these events, Greek men and women dance with their friends, cuddle with their dates, and, most importantly, take home memories that will last a lifetime. Parties and formals are anticipated all year, and when they come around, they never disappoint. Whether at Chi Omega's Eleusinian or Sigma Chi's Ski Lodge, laughter and good times are a guarantee.

Greek Week 2009

we are unified

Greek Life at Arkansas State University may consist of three separate councils, seventeen different organizations, and many diverse individuals, yet it can also be defined in one simple word: unified. Of course the competition is fierce, and each organization has pride for its own members, but ASU also has a great sense of Greek Unity, and our annual Greek Week is an example to prove it. The week-long contest joins NPC, IFC, and NPHC councils together to compete against each other in various activities, including a highly anticipated step/skit competition. All money raised goes towards ASU's Up Till Dawn philanthropy, which donates money to St. Judes Children's Hospital. The ladies of Alpha Gamma Delta were the NPC and overall winners of Greek Week 2009, with Sigma Pi being the IFC champion, and Alpha Kappa Alpha being the NPHC champion. Other Greek awards were also given out during the annual awards presentation. Congratulations to all Greeks for a successful Greek Week 2009!

we are three years and counting!

The ladies of Alpha Kappa Alpha have won Best Steppers on the Yard for three consecutive years. Best Steppers on the Yard acts as the largest fundraiser event held by Arkansas State's NPHC Council. The annual event is held in ASU's Fowler Center. The ladies of Alpha Kappa Alpha won the 2009 title with their 80's flashback themed performance. Other organizations involved include: Phi Beta Sigma, Zeta Phi Beta, Omega Psi Phi, and Alpha Phi Alpha.

we are beauty & brains

Miss Black and Gold is a scholarship pageant held by the men of the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity. It is open to any female student on a campus where a chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha is active. The pageant is not only a celebration of the intelligent and talented college women on our campus, but is also a demonstration of good character and extraordinary fitness.

we are greek royalty

Every year, the gentlemen of Lambda Chi Alpha host the Miss Greek Goddess beauty pageant to raise money for their philanthropy, the North American Food Drive. During the evening, new member sorority women participated in costume, skit, and evening gown competitions. As the judges calculated the girls' scores, 2009 pledge classes cheered and chanted in the "Cream of the Crop" competition, in which Alpha Gamma Delta won for the fourth consecutive year. After much hairspray, sweat, and tears, Brynn Reid (also 3rd overall runner up), Korey Henard (1st runner up), Kelsey Gage (2nd runner up), and Andrea Venus were announced as the costume, skit, evening gown, and people's choice winners, respectively. Girls held their breath and crossed their fingers when it came time to announce the overall Miss Greek Goddess. Alpha Gam's Kelsey Dow was more than happy to wear the crown and hold the title for the '09 school year.

Mr. Greek Adonis

we are the best men on campus

Mr. Greek Adonis is an annual philanthropic event held by the National Panhelleic Conference. Various Greek Organizations sponsored new members of IFC fraternities to compete against each other in three different categories: formal wear with an interview question, talent/skit, and finally, toga. Each IFC Fraternity also introduced their new members as they competed for the title of "Best Men on Campus. The 2009 title was awarded to the men of Lambda Chi Alpha for the third year in row. The title of Mr. Greek Adonis 2009 went to KA's Grant Harper, with 1st runner up awarded to Pi Kappa Alpha's Garrett Weaver, and 2nd runner up awarded to Lambda Chi Alpha's Ivey Herren. This year, there was also a People's Choice award, which was awarded to Lambda Chi Alpha's Chris Godsey.

Throughout college, students are asked time and time again, "What are you studying?" For some, this question is answered easily; they've known for a long time which academic area they would pursue. For others, this question is met with a long line of major changes, advisor meetings, and minor confusion. Eventually though, we all decide on that perfect major and walk across the stage as the final act of our college careers.

ASU offers over 170 different courses of study and over 40 different degrees. It's not a surprise then how difficult it can be to pick just one or two. Students not only attend class, but they make lasting friendships with classmates with whom they will someday share the career field.

We are teachers, therapists, managers, artists, journalists, designers, scientists, writers, nurses, lawyers, mathematicians, accountants, historians, engineers, and programmers.

we are ambitious

select a major fair & job fair

Each October, two events are held to allow students to gain more direction toward academic and career goals. The Select a Major fair is designed to provide students with the opportunity to become more familiar with the academic majors offered by the university. Students attending this event are able to determine a more personal academic plan. The Career Fair exposes ASTATE students to a wide variety of businesses and graduate programs seeking to recruit quality individuals. The two-day fair is specific to various majors and provides a one-stop location to begin a career search.

Dr. Ronald Johnson, a professor in the Biological Sciences department, shared information during the Select a Major Fair to student interested in possibly pursuing a degree in the field of science.

Above: Speaking with potential employers during the Career Fair was extremely important for several students this year given the economic state of the country. Even if the students were not graduating soon, it was important to start obtaining information about various fields.

Above: Vallary Bingham gave a student information about the various aspects of the University College and Interdisciplinary Studies degree.

Right: Regardless if a student was attending the Select A Major Fair of the Career Fair signing up for class credit at the end of the event was very important.

Students not only obtained information about the college, but were able to receive a writing pen marketing the college with a cob of corn on the end.

College of agriculture

Where do students turn who have a love of animals, plants, or the environment? The College of Agriculture and Technology of course! The College of Agriculture and Technology offers five minors, thirteen undergraduate degrees, and six graduate degrees, two of which being Doctorates. In addition to these, there are eight student organizations in which to get involved during their time at ASU. While most colleges at Arkansas State can boast one or two buildings, the College of Agriculture and Technology can boast an entire complex, plus some. Between the Agriculture Building, the Equine Center, and the farm complex, it's easy to say that this college calls much of the ASU campus home. The students in this department are able to give to back to the community each year. Students are responsible for running a petting zoo and a mum sale, both open to the public. With so many learning and playing opportunities, it's not hard to understand why so many students pick the field of agriculture.

College of communications

Satellites cover the top of the three-story building behind the Library. Through the front doors, newspaper stands featuring The Herald greet students and faculty. These halls are filled with the latest technology and student involvement to create the College of Communications. The college offers both undergraduate and graduate degrees and consists of Journalism, Radio-Television, Speech Communications and Graphic Communications departments. The college tenders to students' interests and opportunities to shape life-long careers in the field with KASU, The Herald and ASU-TV. No other University in the state offers students the tools and techniques necessary to succeed in all forms of mass communications. With a steady growth in the field of communications, students are able to get involved in a variety of professional organizations outside of the classroom like Advertising Federation, Association for Women in Communication, Gamma Epsilon Tau, National Broadcasting Society, National Press Photographers Association, Public Relations Student Society of America, Society of Professional Journalists and the Undergraduate Student Research Association.

College of education

What many people do not know about the College of Education is that it intels more than just Teacher Education. The College of Education also is the college for Educational Leadership, Curriculum, and Special Education; Health, Physical Education, and Sports Sciences as well as Psychology and Counseling. Within these programs undergraduate and graduate degrees are both available. Doctorate, Masters, Specialist, as well as Bachelors degrees are all available in several of these departments. On June 4th, 2009 the College of Education selected a new dean. The former dean, Dr. John Beineke, decided to pursue a full teaching course load. A national, highly competitive, search was conducted and Dr. Don Maness was selected as the new Dean of Education. He had served under Dr. Beineke as associate dean and is highly trusted among the staff of ASU. Dr. Maness has an extensive resume that helped prove he was right for the job serving the teaching world for many years in the classroom as well as in administration.

College of engineering

The College of Engineering is recognized regionally and nationally for the dedication to academic excellence and providing a unique educational experience. Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, and Technology are a few of the areas of studies available through this College. In addition to opportunities inside the classroom, students also have the chance to become involved in many different engineering clubs and organizations such as: the American Society of Civil Engineers, American Society of Mechanical Engineering, Institute of Electronically and Electronics Engineers, National Society of Black Engineering, and the Society of Mechanical Engineers. The College of Engineering continues to change to meet the demanding challenges of education in the 21st century and is one of the few programs that offer a true multidisciplinary educational approach in order to better prepare ASU graduates for today's competitive work environment. Information obtained from the ASU website.

College of fine arts

The College of Fine Arts includes three various departments in which students can acquire a degree: Art, Music, and Theater. The Art Department offers numerous bachelors degree in areas of art education, art history digital media, graphic design, and studio art. This year, the Fine Arts Center Gallery housed shows from Louisiana Artist John Gingles, photos from the ASU Collection, northeast regional K-12 Exhibition, ASU Student Exhibition, graduate thesis exhibitions, and the AIGA Graphic Design Competition. The acclaimed Bradbury Gallery located in the Fowler Center hosted 100 Years, 100 Prints to celebrate ASU's Centennial year.

The Music Department gives students the option of gaining a degree in Bachelor of Music Performance, Bachelor of Music Education, and Bachelor of Arts in Instrumental, Vocal, or Keyboard areas. The Music Department is home to ASU's marching band The Sound of the Natural State. Currently, more than 200 students participate in five different large ensembles and numerous small ensembles, each designed to offer every student an opportunity for continued musical growth.

ASU's Theater department allows students to obtain their Bachelors of Fine Arts Theater with an emphasis in acting, design technology, musical theater, or directing. In the 2009-2010 season, the theater department performed Little Shop of Horrors, The Burial at Thebes, The Foreigner, and Bound, an original drama written by ASU professor Tim Bohn.

In Summer of 2010, the College of Fine Arts will make their 10th annual trip to Florence, Italy where students can receive credit at ASU in collaboration with Florence University of the Arts. This study abroad program has become a rewarding tradition for the Fine Arts Department allowing students to grow in their education and learning the different cultures of the world. university college

The University College understands that career success after college starts from the first year for Arkansas State University students. The college has developed programs and degree plans to help ensure that all students are able to achieve success during their time at ASU. Making Connections, Academic Success Institute, and College Courses programs assist freshmen with acclimating to the University setting. In addition to these programs, departments and programs within the University College also assist students with a variety of other things. The Learning Support Services Center, Student Support Services, Wilson Academic Advising, Student Athlete Academic Success Center, and the TRiO Programs are all available to meet a variety of students needs regardless of their classification.

The University College offers three degrees to students, Associates of General Studies, Bachelor of Science in Interdisciplinary Studies, and a Bachelor of Applied Science. But this department has so much to offer each student at Arkansas State. The advisors give students who need a little extra time deciding on a major the guidance they need to make the right choice. Other students are able to create a unique degree plan to suite them and their academic ambitions.

The future is looking good for the Honors College. With a new residence hall opened for honors students exclusively, the program gaining prestige, and enrollment going up, the Honor's College at ASU is on the verge of greatness. With Dr. Gil Fowler and Professor Rebecca Oliver at the head of the operation, the Honors College has made leaps and bounds to further the education of students at Arkansas State University. With over thirty honors courses now available, the Honors College has something to offer everyone. With a smaller classroom with select teachers, honors classes surround the student with a positive atmosphere of learning and success. These classes combined with the new Honors residence hall allow students to not only go to class with their fellow honor's peers, but also to live with them and be encouraged to strive for success wherever they are.

Pompoms and helmets, sweaty towels and athletic tape...those are just a few of the things that made up our ASU Red Wolves. Our student athletes and marching band were the first ones on campus, putting in countless hours of hard work and practice, in hopes of giving fans at least one night to remember.

ASU is represented by approximately fifteen different athletic teams and squads. The school year started out with soccer goals and volleyball spikes in the fall, and it concluded with golf swings and track meets in the spring. Fans decked themselves out in all red, bundle up for an evening at the stadium, devour blue and pink cotton candy at Fan Appreciation Day, and cheered on Howl as he rode onto the field on his motorcycle.

We are high-jumpers, runners, catchers, hard-hitters, kickers, forwards, diggers, bench-warmers, dancers, vaulter, throwers, sliders, weightlifters, putters, shooters, supporters, winners, losers, and teammates.

Remember the first time you heard the "howl" roar over the football stadium? Or the first Red Wolves tshirt that was given to you at Orientation? We are all going to remember Arkansas State University when the colors red and black catch our eyes. The faces spreading along campus represent more than a school, it represents generations, memories, achievements and life-long friendships. We are more than just pictures. Behind ever face is a story and as you look through this yearbook today or ten years from now, remember when we were together.

On, On, On to Victory!
Brave team, we're second to none
Let's make this game history along with the others we've won.
Fight, Fight, Fight!
with all your might
so that the world may see that RED W-O-L-V-E-S means Victory!

Our Alma Mater ASU
Your hallowed halls shall ring
With praise by daughter and noble son
Who proudly stand and sing
Mem'ries of your stirring glory
And of youthful friends we knew
The red and black shall ever wave
On high for ASU

As students came and went, spending time in the library printing countless PowerPoint presentations, and faculty members were preparing for class and grading thousands of papers, very few on campus were still enough to take in all the changes around us. Clyde looked over us, making sure our traditions were not forgotten, while the Red Wolf took in all the bustling activity below.

Thinking back over the year, we were faced with our fair share of challenges–that one class you never thought you would pass, figuring out that having a sibling on campus really is not all that bad, finally realizing that, yes, you will get a ticket if you park somewhere you should not, and realizing that the real world is closer than you ever thought.

We are friends, colleagues, classmates, over-achievers, family, rivals, slackers, teammates, thinkers, doers, and graduates.
